Don't Poison Baby.

DORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have paregorie or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, to this city this morning with the reand a few drops too many will produce the sleep from which there is na Kea. no waking. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a long period have hovered over the narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody, without labeling them glow from flames. The erstwhile "peison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain blackened floor of lava has become and produces sleep, but which in poiseness doses produces stupor, coma, convul-sions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are dis-guised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without ou or your physician know of what it is composed. POPULAR THEATER

Ah, who has forgotten the thrills on seeing, for the first time, "East Lynne," "Lights o' London," "Romany Rye" and those other melodramas that, on the legitimate stage, were so popular before the renaissance of English drama. Wilkie Collins certainly wrote to the popular taste when he set down on paper the incidents of "The Woman in White"—intrigue, secret society influence, attempt to steal a girl's property by forced mar-riage and subsequent substitution by another woman, a double, so that an official signature would be on "the papers," etc.—and the man who dramapers, etc.—and the man who drama-tized the story added the mechanical details for more thrills, so that in its finished play probably "held the boards" for more money than many of the older melodramas. The photo-play production of this famous story and play is a melodramatic masterand play is a melodramatic master-piece in two reels, and when it was screened last night the Popular theater was thoroughly enjoyed. Three other pictures, one a screaming farce comedy having to do with a special kind of bear hunting, helped make the program larger and of more worth. "The Woman in White" shows again tonight and will be added to the list of features for Saturday night. It is certainly worth seeing. A big four-reel feature is the big sensation for the latter part of next week. The title is "Conscience
